Profile

I am an honest & hard-working individual and very self-motivated. I am able to work confidently on my own, though I also enjoy contributing to the success of a team. One of my biggest passions in life is programming, stemming from creating my own websites and applications as a child and branching out to learn Javascript and Python later in life. I am always working on passion projects in my spare time and find learning new methods, libraries and languages highly engaging and interesting. Though I attended university, most of my skills in software development have been self taught and a little I have picked up from online courses. I am a fast learner and enjoy being challenged, I cope well under pressure and I am able to adapt quickly to changing situations, policies & processes.
